Steering system Steering system steering is the method in which the wheels are turned to follow the direction of travel and the speed of the vehicle. Steering systems for automobiles and commercial vehicles usually include a wheel, a wheel axis, a universal joint, a rack and pinion, and a control system. At the front of the vehicle, this system is sometimes referred to as a steering assist system. At the rear of the vehicle, it is sometimes referred to as a steering tie rod (RND) system. Evaluation of the steering system is commonly done with a steering wheel (adjusted manually or hydraulically), a turn indicator, a speedometer, and a brake and accelerator pedals. In heavy-duty vehicles, the brake and accelerator pedals are replaced by a hydraulic jockey wheel and selector switch. The switch is used to control the gears of the transmission and steering via a combination of hydraulic actuators. Flexible design

Mo Farah's disbelief at winning gold in the 5,000m at the Moscow World Championships on Sunday has deepened after he was given a standing ovation by the stands at the Olympic Stadium in London. Farah, the most successful athlete of the London 2012 and Rio 2016 Games, dramatically pulled away from the rest of the field in the closing stages of the men's 5,000m final in Moscow, crossing the line in a time of 13 minutes, 11.42 seconds - an Olympic record and only four seconds off the world record. Afterwards, Farah was visibly moved by the Italian Olympic Committee (CONI) paying tribute to him for his contribution to Italian sport, but was visibly surprised at the boos and whistles of the crowd as he tried to make his way past to the podium. "People said I'd be booed when I came to London last time and now I'm booed again," Farah told BBC Sport. "I know I've made a difference in Italian sport - to me that was the first time. I was in a different country, had different people, and I know I was able to impact on people's lives and I've done it again. "When people are booing I'm surprised - the situation I'm in is really good and I'm really grateful." As well as being the only runner who has won consecutive 5,000m titles, Farah became the first man to win the race on the new, synthetic cross-country surface at World Championships level when he pulled away from the field at the half way mark. "I knew I'd have some support over the last few laps but I didn't expect to be given a standing ovation," Farah said. "It didn't sink in when I went over the line. I couldn't believe it
